CRUISES TO JOIN EL PASOANS

Dr. R. E. McBride, of Las Cruces, Is Honored by Medical Association.

The El Paso Herald's automobile leaves The Herald office at 12:30 o'clock every afternoon, except Sundays, for all points on county road and for Las Cruces. The car returns to El Paso from the Herald's Las Cruces office (the Postoffice Newsstand) at 10 a. m. Arrangements can be made with T. J. Johns, at Las Cruces, for delivery of The Herald and for auto service. Items for the Las Cruces department will be given careful attention and mailed to Mrs. Herbert Yeo, P. O. box 402, or telephone to her at phone 272.

Las Cruces, N. M., July 1.—A number of autoists from Las Cruces will join those from El Paso and go to the famous resort—Van Patton's camp in the Organ mountains—on July 4, and return to Las Cruces. The party will be made up of the Herald's Las Cruces office and other sports of the afternoon and evening.

The Las Cruces Elks will play the Las Cruces Grays on that day. Las Cruces Man Honored.
Dr. R. E. McBride, of Las Cruces, was elected president of the Association of State Secretaries of the American Medical Association, which met at Minneapolis. Dr. McBride has for several years edited the New Mexico Medical Journal. He was chosen to represent the state of New Mexico at the national meeting of the association.

The Fibab club will hold a smoker on July 11. A. A. Scott, of Amarillo, Tex., traveling agent for the El Paso and San Antonio Despatch Co., arrived here yesterday morning to make arrangements for the handling of the cantaloupes to be shipped by the Dona Ana Mercantile company.

Edmond Link and wife have returned from a brief visit at Van Patton's camp in the Organ mountains. Homebound Link is now in the city, looking after the business of the reclamation service.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Alton went to El Paso yesterday. Vincent May went to El Paso yesterday to meet his mother-in-law, Mrs. P. Fitting, who has been in Los Angeles and will visit here some time with her daughter.

Hot in Cruces.
Yesterday was regarded as one of the hottest days of the summer season in Las Cruces. C. R. Babcock, of Kelly, was on our streets lately. R. T. Blakes, of Kansas City, Mo., was here yesterday. Miss Bertha Brown, formerly of this place, is among friends here. She states that her people purpose to return to New Mexico in the autumn. O. A. Budd, of Savannah, Ga., was here yesterday on his way from California to Alamogordo, where he will spend a few days on business, before returning to his southern home. He stopped off here for a brief rest. A. F. Hubbard and C. J. Tilly, of Deming, N. M., were here yesterday on business.

TYRONE WOMAN IS KILLED IN RUNAWAY

Is Thrown From Buggy and Strikes Her Head Against a Rock, Fracturing Her Skull.

Silver City, N. M., July 1.—Mrs. Dominguez, whose home is at Leopold, was on her way to Tyrone in a buggy, her horse running away, and striking a large rock and fracturing her skull. She was conveyed to her home, where she died at 4 o'clock. Her husband and several children survive her.

About two weeks ago heavy rains fell in this section and old settlers were confident the rainy season had set in for good and farmers felt they could spend a few days on business before returning to their southern home. He stopped off here for a brief rest. A. F. Hubbard and C. J. Tilly, of Deming, N. M., were here yesterday on business.

TEXAS BOY DROWNS IN NEW MEXICO

Lake Arthur, N. M., July 1.—Overcome by Texas sun, a 14-year-old lad of Corsicana, Texas, who was visiting friends near here, was found dead in an irrigation reservoir near here.

After dinner the boy told Mrs. Ino. N. Brown, who was visiting, he was going to take a bath. He was found 30 minutes afterward by a bird hawk.

The theory for his death, which was proved by an examination, was that he was overcome by gases from the engine and fainted, lying in the spillway, and died.

MARRIES ALDERMAN'S COUSIN AND ATTORNEY LOSES HIS JOB

Austin, Tex., July 1.—The authorities at Austin, Tex., have advised by the attorney general's department that the mayor and city council could not legally employ an attorney who married a first cousin of one of the council members. The necessary orders and papers in connection with a bond issue; that the attorney had been elected within the second degree to the office by affinity, and that each member of the council was a first cousin of the attorney. The attorney would be guilty of a violation of the anti-incest law if they should vote for the employment of the lawyer.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION. The United States of America, Eastern District of Texas.

The President of the United States of America.
To the Marshal of the Western District of Texas, Greeting.
You are hereby commanded to summon Nicholas Galliano, by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks, to appear before the court of the United States of America, to be held at the next regular term of the honorable district court of the United States to be held in and for the western district of Texas, on the 10th day of October, A. D. 1913, to answer the petition and complaint of the United States of America, plaintiff, exhibited and filed in said court on the 26th day of April, A. D. 1913, against said Nicholas Galliano, defendant, and said petition and complaint, filed on the 26th day of April, A. D. 1913, there was issued to Nicholas Galliano, by the court of the United States of America, a certificate of naturalization, which said Nicholas Galliano was not at the time of the issuance of said certificate of naturalization, and that the said certificate of naturalization was procured by fraud and fraudulent testimony, and that said certificate should therefore be cancelled and held for naught.

Herein fail not, but have you then and there before said court this writ, with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Witness the honorable T. S. Maxey, United States district judge, and the seal of said court, at El Paso, Texas, this ninth day of June, A. D. 1913. Issued same day.

D. H. Hart, Clerk.
By Geo. B. Oliver, Deputy.

A true copy of the original, I hereby certify.

ALPINE WOMAN IS ATTACKED BY SKUNK
Falls Asleep in Canyon, Alarms Friends and Awakes After Dark to Find Skunk Biting Her Ear.

Alpine, Tex., July 1.—Mrs. R. J. Dantler, of Alpine, was attacked by a skunk with darkness and a skunk in the canyon. She left home early in the afternoon, telling her husband that she was going to the canyon. When she had not returned at 7, Mr. Dantler became alarmed and went out to the canyon in a motor, accompanied by L. H. Starnes, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Gillett and Mr. and Mrs. George Balma, Jr., were eating a picnic supper there, but they had seen nothing of Mrs. Dantler. They joined the search party and in a short time found Mrs. Dantler's house and huddled to a tree. It was then that she was bitten on the ear by a skunk. She was unconscious for some time, but was revived by the search party. She was taken to the hospital and is now recovering.

ALPINE NORMAL HAS 50 PUPILS ENROLED

REMARKABLE STORY OF A DALLAS MAN

J. F. Carter, Traveler and Salesman, Tells of the Use of Plant Juice.

Here is a man who was forced to give up his position on account of bad health and who has for four years as he expresses it, been down and out. He is Mr. J. F. Carter of 123 North Pearl.

His statement is a splendid tribute to Plant Juice.

"I am 54; have been a traveling salesman for the Connelly Manufacturing Company, of New York, and have traveled all over the United States many times. It seems that I have had almost everything the matter with me, a chronic stomach and kidney trouble that affected my bowels, nerves, liver and blood. For four years I have been unfit for business until Plant Juice brought me relief. It is wonderful what it has done for me. It has cured me and made me well and hearty, and done it in a very few weeks. To show you that I am a well man, free from stomach and kidney troubles, I have eaten the green plant corrector and tonic of the age. It is made from the juices of pure fresh herbs of many countries. It restores vitality, puts new life and energy into you. Sold at Kelly & Pollard's—Advertisement.

The Diary of A Bachelor

Mrs. Somers Laughs at His Solemn Lecture and Tries to Kiss Him Again.

JUNE 4—I accused Sally Spencer of not being entirely guiltless of the transgressions of my sex, and for five minutes after I never witnessed a finer display of indignation.

Her eyes flashed, and if honest and just anger could have killed, I would have perished on the spot. I let her talk till her vehement indignation had exhausted her, and she was finding the usual woman's refuge in tears and sobs. I never attacked deliberately and dispassionately. I was determined to show to one good woman that the bad women are not alone to blame.

Men are always forming laws to protect women from the men; I felt for the time being that there should be laws to protect the men from the women.

"You are like all women; you overlook the real charge in your defence of yourself. You remind me that your girlhood was always treated by you as my best friend. If I have ever offended you, there was a pitiful note in her voice. I never forgive me. I can't lose a friend now."

The Old Subject.
"You are not going to lose me as a friend, now on at any other time, taking her hands in mine and giving them a pressure that seemed to reassure her, though the touch of her hands had anything but a reassuring effect on me. But what else? I am your friend, dear girl, so forget your doubts on that question."

"Call me your hands, for I wanted to say my dispassionately. You kissed me the other morning. You have such a kissable mouth. I have wanted to do it ever since. But what else? Are you giving me this holiday just because I kissed my dearest friend? You are growing more like a boy every day. I've a good notion, to kiss you once more. You did look so surprised and so funny and you were so helpless with Manette in your arms. Really, I am tempted to do it again."

"You say I am more like a boy every day." She nodded her head. "And a silly boy."

"A boy," I resumed, "gets little blue tickets at Sunday school for being good."

"That kiss," she interrupted, "was a little blue ticket. I gave it to you for being good."

"You are a good woman, and you give me blue tickets. I am a man, and therefore not good. In giving me that kiss you rolled on your innocence and my strength. I am not strong. No man is."

"It was just as if I had kissed my brother."

"Now don't let us have any evasions," I said angrily. "I am not your brother, and it is silly to make the pretense. I am your friend, and your husband's friend, but I am not his friend in the way I was before you kissed me."

"You are a good woman, and I am trying to make you see the mischief a good woman can do. I am trying to make you realize that the goodness of the woman doesn't put all thought of mischief out of the man's head."

"She was crying, and I can't stand it to see a woman cry."

"I don't mean to hurt you," I said tenderly. "I felt as if I had been a brute. I just want you to realize that you are a very handsome woman, a very attractive woman, and altogether too lovely to go around putting your arms around a man's neck and expecting him to accept of it. I kiss you for one as one that came from a sister. I don't want to hurt you, but I want you to know that."

Now, there was where I said the wrong thing, for I appealed to her sympathy. Instead of remaining in her chair and saying she was sorry and letting it go at that, she impulsively sprang up and came toward me. I had risen and was starting for the door, but she detained me by putting a hand on my arm.

"I am so sorry, Max," she said. "I didn't realize it. I had always thought of you as just Max, my dearest friend." She lifted her hands and quitted me on the cheeks. "You know I love Jack," she said, and you must always remember that. You are a good man, and you have been picturing yourself as a bad one just to frighten me. You silly boy, you."

Her Contact.
"You are my brother—my big, best, only brother—and I won't let you say you are not, or that you ever think of being anything but a pleasure. I kiss up her lips. Give me a brotherly kiss to prove it, you goose, you. The little blue tickets are a pleasure, even though I never accumulated enough for a reward of merit. Then I pushed her roughly aside and walked out the door."

There is no use, Diary, in any man trying to influence a woman to protect him from herself.
